Total number of areas with probable chancel repair liability is 479

Examples of enclosure award chancel repair liability notes

This information is derived from House of common Papers 30 and 44 where they list the effect of many of the enclosure award from 1771 to about 1830. The Acts of parliament that I have listed seem to give land in lieu of tithes to a lay person or an appropriator. I have cross-referenced the places with various search engines to find plans of the enclosure awards.

The places listed may well not be the place to where the church with the chancel liability is and a study of the relevant tithe apportionment maybe needed. The intention of the enclosure act might well be contradicted by the award hence the act award and plan have to be read together to ascertain what actually happened. The Award that goes with the enclosure plan is likely to be in the same or a related file.

These are only examples and not a definitive list of parish with enclosure awards giving land in lieu of tithes since I did not examine every parish and I have excluded those where I could not locate a plan and those on the order papers which only had a Clerical Rector, and there will be enclosures not included on order papers 30 and 44.

I would guess that about 95% of the places listed will have the liability since some churches will either be redundant or have been rebuilt in a different place or without a chancel. Ordinary rebuilt churches almost certainly retain the liability.

There are many enclosure awards that at first glance do not seem to have a plan but that does not mean that the land is untraceable just that is significantly harder. Plans or awards may well be unreadable or the land so changed that finding any liability is impossible.

The counties and spellings are based on what was correct or known to the Houses of Commons in the late 1830's and may not be correct today.

There are other sources of chancel repair liability in the non-apportioned form including merged land and tithes and Rectory Glebe but this may well be found by looking at tithe maps and doing local research.

My church's website carries some further advice <http://www.stmichaelspenkridge.co.uk/chancel.html>
